PREFACE

The following dissertation on "Impersonals of the Ventum Est type" was suggested by Professor Kent's review of Professor H. E. Burton's Latin Grammar in the Classical Weekly 5. 162.

Professor Kent says, "In §346 ventum est is rendered by 'some one came', but it means also, and more often, 'they (he, we) came.'"

This remark has led to this study, the aim of which has been to investigate the use of the impersonal passive of the type ventum est, and to discover whether or not impersonals of this class have a definite agent or doer of the action logically implied in the context.

The material for this thesis has been gathered from those authors of the republican period of whom we have works or portions of works preserved substantially entire: Plautus, Terence, Cato, Varro, Caesar and the other works found in the Corpus Caesarianum, Lucretius, Catullus, Sallust and Nepos.

Examples (about nine hundred in number) found in Cicero and classified on page 40 have not been discussed, since they add nothing new to the investigation.

The works of other authors of this time, as Livius Andronicus, Naevius, Ennius, Lucilius, Pacuvius, etc., have not been used, because they are in a fragmentary condition and the proper context for such study is usually lacking.

CHAPTER I

DEFINITION AND CLASSIFICATION OF IMPERSONAL VERBS

This chapter deals with the definition and classification of the impersonals as given by grammarians. They all seem to have the same opinion with little or no variations.

Zumpt §225 thus defines an impersonal verb: "The term impersonal verbs strictly applies only to those of which no other but the third person singular is used, and which do not admit a personal subject (I, thou, he), the subject being a proposition, an infinitive, or a neuter noun understood."

Madvig §165 writes: "Those verbs are called impersonal which are used only in the third person singular, and have usually no reference to a subject in the nominative."

Allen and Greenough consider this a definition of impersonal verbs: "Many verbs from their meaning, appear only in the third person singular, the infinitive, and the gerund. These are called Impersonal Verbs, as having no personal subject."

Roby §575 says, "Certain verbs in the third singular, where the fact of the action, state, or feeling is the prominent point and the doer is left indefinite, are called impersonals."

Gildersleeve §208 says, "Impersonal verbs are verbs in which the agent is regularly implied in the action, the subject in the predicate, so that the person is not expressed."

Lane §1034 expresses his idea of an impersonal thus: "Some verbs have no subject at all in the third person singular; these are called Impersonal."

Roby seems to have been the only one who emphasized the fact, that an impersonal expression is used when the writer wishes to make the act prominent and the actor secondary. This idea is very clearly brought out by a French scholar, A. Ernout in his "Recherches sur l'emploi du passif latin," in M. S. L. 15.292. In distinguishing between itur and it, eunt, Ernout says that the action is stressed in the former, the actor being obvious and left to inference, while the latter (it, eunt) gives equal prominence to the act and to the actor.

Grammarians have classified these impersonal verbs under four headings.

(1) The first group contains all those verbs which express the operations of nature and the time of day; as, lucet, pluit, tonat, vesperascit. This class of verbs is ranked as impersonal, although in the ultimate logical analysis, sky, earth or heaven personified is understood as the subject: cf. Cic. N. D. 2.25.65, also Ar. Nub. 1279-1281.

κάτειπέ νυν

πότερα νομίζεις καινὸν ἀεὶ τὸν Δία ὕειν ὕδωρ ἐκάστοτ', ἢ τὸν ἥλιον ἔλκειν κάτωθεν ταῦτ' τοῦθ' ὕδωρ πάλιν.
and Il. 12. 25, 26.

ὕε δ' ἄρα Ζεὺς

συνεχές, ὄφρα κε θᾶσσον ἀλίπλοα τείχεα θείη.

(2) The second class of impersonals, as defined by grammarians, consists of five verbs of "mental distress" (Lane 1034), miseret, paenitet, piget, pudet, taedet. These verbs are really causative. The cause of the feeling is put in the genitive and the person affected by the feeling in the accusative. These impersonals may have an infinitive or clause as subject; as, Plaut. Pseud. 282 non dedisse istum pudet; me quia non accepi piget; cf. Allen and Greenough §354.C.

Sometimes these verbs are used personally with a neuter pronoun as subject; as, Ter. Ad. 754 non te haec pudet; cf. Allen and Greenough §354.C, note.

Rarely is the subject an appellative; as, me quidem haec condicio non paenitet, Plaut. Stich. 51; cf. Lane §1284.

(3) The third class of impersonals, as commonly given, includes those verbs which have a phrase, clause or infinitive as subject; as,

accidit	evenit	necesse est	refert
certum est	fit	obtingit	restat
constat	interest	obvenit	superest
contingit	iuvat	oportet	videtur
decet	libet	placet
delectat	licet	praestat

(4) The fourth class, represented by the type ventum est (the subject of this thesis), includes:

(a) All the passives of the intransitive verbs of motion; as, itur.

(b) All passives of transitives used in an intransitive or absolute sense. In litteras scribit, scribit is transitive, but in bene scribit it is used intransitively or absolutely. In Plaut. Pseud.

273, amatur is used in this intransitive sense, although amo is regularly transitive.

(c) The passives of the verbs denoting state, disposition, feeling or quality, which are intransitive in Latin and require an indirect object in the dative. "In the passive such verbs are used impersonally, the dative remaining;" cf. Hale and Buck, §364. Caesar decimae legioni indulgebat becomes in the passive decimae legioni a Caesare indulgebatur. Nostri finitimi nobis invident, has for its passive nobis a finitimis nostris invidetur. Trebonio persuasi, becomes in the passive Trebonio a me persuasum est.

(d) Some deponents which are rarely used impersonally; as philosophatum est Plaut. Pseud. 687 and defunctum sit Ter. Ad. 508.

(e) Some passive infinitives depending on coepe, desino, possum, soleo, etc., as pugnari coeptum est B. H. 15.5, desitum est potarier Plaut. Most. 958, sisti potest Plaut. Trin. 720, solet caveri Varro R. R. 2. 6. 3.

Coepe and desino show a very marked peculiarity. When they are used with an infinitive passive they are generally put in the passive, as pugnari coeptum est. This is especially true of Caesar and of Cicero. When the infinitive was used in an impersonal sense and accordingly was passive, a change was logical. In pugnare coepit, pugnare is the object of coepit; in pugnari coeptum est, pugnari is the subject. The point here is the change of subject, so that instead of pugnari coepit, pugnari coeptum est (the passive instead of the active) came into use. Coeptum est is a real passive while pugnari became passive because it is impersonal. This usage was extended to other phrases, as lapides iaci coepti sunt in Caes. B. G. 2. 6. 2. This is hardly a "curious instance of attraction," as Lindsay calls it in his Latin Language, 522, cf. Kühner II, 1 §125.1, 2, also H. Kratz in N. Jahrb. f. Phil. u. Paedag., XI, 724, f., Eduard Wölfflin in Archiv f. lat. Lexikogr. u. Gram. VI, 101.

The following notes contain remarks on apparently impersonal passive forms that have not been included, with the reasons for such exclusion.

Note I. The neuter gerundive of intransitive verbs is used with est as an impersonal phrase to signify that the action must be done; as nunc est bibendum Hor. Carm. 1. 37. 1. Although this form is a variation of the ventum est type, examples containing it have not been used, because, while this construction is passive in form, it has no corresponding active.

"Gerundives and gerunds like the English verbal in -ing were originally neither active nor passive, but might stand for either an active or a passive. In time a prevailing passive meaning grew up in the gerundive, and a prevailing active meaning in the gerund." Lane §2238.

Note 2. Examples of iri used with the supine forming the future passive infinitive, while they are a variant of the ventum est type, are not included in this discussion, because this is the regular way of expressing the future passive infinitive, and iri, although an impersonal, is not felt as one; as, "Cic. ad Att. 7. 22. 1 eum exceptum iri puto = I think that there is a going to capture him, i. e. that he is going to be captured. Iri is used impersonally and eum is the object of exceptum." Lane §2273.

"The form of the infinitive future passive is derived from the notion of going or intending, which easily passes over into that of futurity." Zumpt §668 note.

Note 3. Passives used with certain adverbs such as satis, tantum, istuc, etc., have not been considered, because the idea contained in these adverbs may be felt to be the subject; as, Sallust. Cat. 19. 6 de superiore coniuratione satis dictum (est). Satis, or the idea contained in it, is the subject. In Caes. B. G. 5. 19. 3 tantum agris vastandis incendiisque faciendis hostibus noceretur, tantum has been considered as subject. In Caes. B. G. 6. 34. 7 and 7. 16. 3 quantum . . . provideri poterat, quantum is the subject.

Grammarians say very little concerning this ventum est group. They are content to translate it by the stereotyped and monotonous forms, there is a coming, people came, etc., ignoring for the most part the fact that the sense of the passage implies a definite doer or agent, which is expressed or clearly implied in the context.

Several definitions of the ventum est type (as given by grammarians) follow: "An impersonal proposition is formed in Latin by the passive of intransitive verbs (or transitives which are used intransitively in a certain signification), by which it is simply asserted that the action takes place; as ventum erat ad urbem." Madvig §218c.

"The third person singular of a great many words, especially of those denoting movement or saying, is, or may be used impersonally, even when the verb is neuter, and has no personal passive, e. g. curritur they or people run." Zumpt §229.

"The passive of intransitive verbs is often used; as, vivitur, people live." Gildersleeve §208.2.

"The passive of intransitive verbs can be used only impersonally; as, itur, there is a going, someone goes." Hale and Buck §201c.

"The passive of intransitive verbs is very often used impersonally; as, pugnatur, there is fighting, (it is fought)." Allen and Greenough §208.

"The impersonal use of the passive proceeds from its original reflexive (or middle) meaning, the action being regarded as accomplishing itself (compare the French cela se fait).'' Allen and Greenough §208d, note.

CHAPTER II

DIVISIONS OF THE VENTUM EST TYPE.

The examples of the ventum est type collected from the Latin authors of the republican period, have been classified under the following headings; as,

- 1.. Actor not expressed.
 - A. Actor definite in
 - a. first person singular,
 - b. second person singular (real),
 - c. third person singular,
 - d. first person plural
 1. real,
 2. editorial,
 - e. second person plural,
 - f. third person plural.
 - B. Actor indefinite in
 - a. second person singular (general),
 - b. third person singular,
 - c. third person plural.
- 2.. Actor not expressed, but definitely known from the verb; as Cato de Agr. 150. 1 interkalatum erit = pontifices interkalaverint.
- 3.. Actor expressed, as in Caes. B. G. 5. 40. 4 a nostris resistitur. These impersonals have been designated in this dissertation "Impersonals with Expressed Agent."

CHAPTER III 1.

THE ACTOR DEFINITE IN THE FIRST PERSON SINGULAR.

This division contains all the verbs of the ventum est type, the subjects of which, if expressed, would logically be in the first person singular; as, Plaut. Merc. 465 auscultabitur. Demipho says "ad portum ne bitas, dico iam tibi. Do not go to the harbor, I tell you that now." Charinus is expected to answer in the first person, either negatively or affirmatively. Instead of using this very much overworked first person, Plautus gives us a variation, by using "auscultabitur, it will be heard," which is equivalent to saying, "I will heed you and not go to the harbor." Plaut. As. 259 impetritum, inauguratumst = impetrevi, inauguravi; cf. sumam, intervortam, conferam 258.

Plaut. Bacch. 66 desudascitur = desudasco; cf. metuam 65, me 66.

Plaut. Cas. 758^a ibitur = ibo, being said in answer to i.

Plaut. Cist. 519 definitumst = definivi; cf. remittam.

Plaut. Men. 533 factum est = feci, being said in answer to te surrupuisse aiebas 532.

Plaut. Men. 538 curabitur = curabo; cf. dicam.

Plaut. Men. 679 factum est = feci; cf. dedi 678, redimam 680.

Plaut. Men. 964 proventum est = proveni; cf. faciam, cupio 963.

Plaut. Merc. 324 visumst = vidi, being in answer to vide.

Plaut. Merc. 465 auscultabitur = auscultabo, being in answer to ad portum ne bitas.

Plaut. Merc. 776 abibitur = abibo, being in answer to volo <te abire>.

Plaut. M. G. 1173 praeceptumst = praecepi; cf. volo 1170.

Plaut. Most. 314 imperatum est = imperavi; cf. volo.

Plaut. Most. 401 curabitur = curabo, answering the command intus cave multire quemquam siveris.

Plaut. Pers. 17^b vivitur = vivo, answering quid agitur? which is equivalent to quid agis; cf. ut vales, ut queo 17^a.

Plaut. Pers. 246 tacitum erit, celabitur = tacebo, celabo, cf. tu hoc taceto.

Plaut. Pers. 320 credetur = credam; cf. commodabo.

- Plaut. Poen. 913 dictumst = dixi, being in answer to the command haec cura clanculum ut sint dicta.
- Plaut. Pseud. 273 amatur, egetur = amo, egeo, answering quid agitur, Calidore?
- Plaut. Pseud. 457 statur = sto, answering quid agitur which is equivalent to quid agis.
- Plaut. Pseud. 687 philosophatum est = philosophatus sum; cf. diu loquor.
- Plaut. Rud. 776 curatumst = curavi, being an answer to the command cura.
- Plaut. Stich. 467 sustentatumst = sustentavi, answering valuistin usque?
- Plaut. Stich. 509 credetur = credam; cf. experior.
- Plaut. Stich. 586 sustentatumst = sustentavi, answering valuistin bene?
- Plaut. Trin. 578 ibitur = ibo, answering the command abi huc ad meam sororem ad Calliclem 577.
- Plaut. Trin. 720 sisti potest = sistere possum; cf. agam, constringam, accomodem, iubeam.
- Plaut. Truc. 667 ibitur = ibo, answering qui non extemplo <intro>ieris.
- Ter. Ad. 210 actum esse = egisse <me>; cf. conveniam, faxo 209.
- Ter. Ad. 561 factum = feci, answering produxe aibas.
- Ter. Ad. 631 cessatum est = cessavi; cf. exorasse, ducerem 630.
- Ter. Ad. 958 factumst = feci, answering tu illas abi et traduce 917.
- Ter. Eun. 271 statur = sto; cf. quid agitur, an equivalent to quid agis.
- Ter. Eun. 851 factum = feci, answering aufugistin?
- Ter. Eun. 1066 dictumst = dixi, strengthening the threat si te in platea offendero 1064.
- Ter. Heaut. 862 inceptumst = incepi; cf. mi.
- Ter. Hec. 452 factum = feci, answering dixtin dudum illam dixisse se expectare filium?
- Ter. Hec. 457 creditur = credo, being an answer to bene factum te advenisse, etc.
- Ter. Hec. 843 visumst = vidi, answering vide 841.
- Ter. Hec. 846 factum = feci, confirming te dixisse . . .
Bacchidem anulum suum habere 845, 846.
- Ter. Phorm. 402 dici potest = dicere possum; cf. mihi 401.
- Cato de Agr. 118 scriptum est = scripsi (the writer).

Varro L. L. 5. 109 perventum est = perveni; cf. dicam 105.

Varro L. L. 5. 171 dictum est = dixi; cf. video 164.

Varro L. L. 8. 21 dictum = dixi; cf. omitto 8. 19.

Varro L. L. 8.21 visum est = vidi; cf. dico 22.

Varro L. L. 9. 92 responsum est = respondi; cf. dixi.

Varro L. L. 9. 107 dictum est = dixi (the writer).

Varro L. L. 10.51 decurritur = decurro; cf. dico.

CHAPTER III 2.

THE ACTOR DEFINITE IN THE SECOND PERSON SINGULAR

The second division contains all those examples that have a definite doer logically implied in the second person singular; as, Plaut. Amph. 700 factum est. Alcumena says, "nam dudum ante lucem et istunc et te vidi. A little before dawn, I saw you and him (Sosia)." Amphitruo asks, "quo in loco? In what place?" Alcumena answers, "hic in aedibus ubi tu habitas. Here in the house where you live." Amphitruo replies, "numquam factum est. It never was done." Factum est is equivalent to fecisti, you never did, meaning you never saw us. The context demands such an answer.

Plaut. Amph. 700 numquam factum est = numquam fecisti, being a denial of istunc et te vidi 699.

Plaut. Amph. 749 numquam factumst = numquam fecisti, answering audivistin tu me narrare haec hodie?

Plaut. Curc. 122 nolo dici = nolo <te> dicere.

Plaut. Curc. 714 factum est = fecisti, answering his own question promistin te omne argentum redditurum 709-710.

Plaut. Poen. 756 postulatumst = postulavisti, answering the remark valeant apud te quos volo 755.

Plaut. Pseud. 501 dictumst = dixisti; cf. mussitabas. The question non a me scibas pistrinum in mundo tibi 500, answered by scibam, is immediately followed by quin dictumst mihi? which is answered in 502.

Plaut. Pseud. 516 praedicitur = praedicis; cf. te 515. This question is asked as an answer to facito ut memineris 515.

Plaut. Trin. 138 curatum = curavisti; cf. inconciliastin 136, exturbasti 137.

Plaut. Truc. 369 ambulatunst = ambulavisti; cf. soles 368.

Ter. Eun. 416 dictum = dixisti; cf. iugularas 417.

Ter. Eun. 902 commissum erit = commiseris, answering, non faciam, Pythias.

CHAPTER III 3.

THE ACTOR DEFINITE IN THE THIRD PERSON SINGULAR

This group includes all those verbs having a definite actor logically implied in the third person singular; as, Plaut. Pseud. 1113 imperatumst. Harpax, after speaking of the general worthlessness of slaves when their master is absent, adds, "ego, ut mi imperatumst, etsi abest, hic adesse erum arbitror. I, as <my master> commanded me, although he is away, think he is here <and act accordingly>." The sense of the passage requires a definite subject for the active verb implied in imperatumst, as is shown by erum.

Plaut. Aul. 527 itur = it; cf. ipsus 530.

Plaut. Bacch. 43 emeritum sit = emeruerit; cf. haec.

Plaut. Bacch. 447 itur = it; cf. magister 448.

Plaut. Curc. 336 responsumst = respondit; cf. respondit 333, ab illo 336.

Plaut. Men. 650 factum = fecit; cf. homo, Menaechmus.

Plaut. Men. 808 factumst = fecit; cf. hoc, hominem.

Plaut. M. G. 590 actum est = egit; cf. mulier 591.

Plaut. M. G. 1085 responsumst = respondit; cf. hic 1083.

Plaut. M. G. 1332 factum est = fecit; cf. mulierem 1330, also huic miserae.

Plaut. M. G. 1403 ventumst = venit; cf. uxorem 1402.

Plaut. Most. 260 dictum = dixit; cf. Scaphae.

Plaut. Most. 958 desitum est potarier = desiit potare; cf. eius 957.

Plaut. Pseud. 74 scriptum est = scripsit; cf. ea 62.

Plaut. Pseud. 1113 imperatumst = imperavit; cf. erum.

Plaut. Trin. 138 mandatum = mandavit; cf. qui 137.

Plaut. Trin. 308 actumst = egit; cf. animus 306.

Plaut. Trin. 600 imperatumst = imperavit; cf. ibit 598.

Ter. Ad. 279 reddetur = reddet; cf. reddet 280.

CHAPTER III 4.

THE ACTOR DEFINITE IN THE FIRST PERSON PLURAL

Under this heading are placed all those verbs which have an implied definite actor in the first person plural. There are two varieties of this class, the Real and the Editorial.

I. Real.

The Real first plural refers to definite persons, as Ter. Phorm. 135 factumst, ventumst, vincimur. Vincimur is a real first person plural active and has for its subject, Geta, who is speaking, and his master. In the same line, Terence uses factumst and ventumst, two impersonals which have for the subject of their equivalent actives fecimus and venimus, the same subject as vincimur. Geta says, "factumst, ventumst, vincimur. We did <it>, we came, we were conquered, or we did <as Phormio advised>, we went <to court>, we lost <our case>." Vincimur clearly shows that factumst and ventumst are equivalent to actives with an implied subject in the real first person plural.

Plaut. Curc. 646 ventum est = venimus; cf. ea me spectatum tulerat per Dionysia 644.

Plaut. Stich. 774 saltatum est = saltavimus; cf. abeamus.

Plaut. Truc. 9 ventumst = venimus; cf. agamus.

Ter. Ad. 302 emergi potest = emergere possumus; cf. mihi, eraeque filiaeque erili.

Ter. And. 129 fletur = flemus; cf. venimus 128.

Ter. Heaut. 275 ventum est = venimus; cf. hic, ego 277.

Ter. Heaut. 281 interventum est = intervenimus; cf. hic, ego 277.

Ter. Heaut. 743 eatur = eamus; cf. sequere hac.

Ter. Phorm. 135 factumst, ventumst = fecimus, venimus; cf. vincimur.

Ter. Phorm. 640 pervenirier potuit = pervenire potuimus; cf. volumus 641.

Ter. Phorm. 773 possiet discedi = possimus discedere; cf. gessermus 772.

Varro R. R. 1. 44. 3 dicetur = dicemus; cf. Licinius 3 and Agrius.

Varro R. R. 2. 2. 6 agitur = agimus; cf. emptor, ille.

Caes. B. C. 2. 31. 4 credi = <nos> credere; cf. habeamus 5.

Caes. B. G. 1. 44. 8 concedi oporteret = <nos> concedere oporteret; cf. nos.

Lucr. 6. 32 occurri = <nos> occurrere; cf. tendimus 26, possemus 28.

Sall. Jug. 31. 26 vindicatum = vindicaverimus; cf. vivamus.

2. Editorial.

In this group have been placed those impersonals denoting what the writer thinks, knows, or says. To avoid mentioning himself exclusively, he uses an "editorial plural." This sometimes means himself, as in Sall. Jug. 33. 2 diximus, which is equivalent to dixi and clearly means the writer (Sallust) only. Or the author may include others besides himself in this first plural, as in Varro L. L. 9. 54 dicimus which has for subject we grammarians or we people. Again, to vary his construction, he may substitute an impersonal, having for its equivalent active a subject in the first plural editorial, as in Sall. Jug. 96. 1 dictum est. That dictum est is a first plural editorial, is proved by Jug. 33. 2, 34. 1, 37. 3, 38. 6, where diximus is used in the same sense.

By careful comparison with the active plurals in the same paragraph, it has been felt that the six examples of Varro which follow, should be classed as first plural rather than first singular.

The fourteen examples of Caesar which are cited, are also felt to be plurals rather than singulars because Caesar uses the first plural active much more frequently than first singular active. Evidence for this is given in Appendix I.

Varro L. L. 5. 74 dictum est = diximus; cf. dicimus, videamus 5. 75.

Varro L. L. 9. 54 dicitur = dicimus; cf. dicimus.

Varro L. L. 9. 76 transiretur = transiremus, cf. dicimus.

Varro L. L. 9. 82 perventum est = pervenimus; cf. dicimus 83.

Varro L. L. 9. 98 responderi potest = respondere possumus; cf. dicamus 97.

(Caes.) B. Alex. 4. 1; Caes. B. C. 1. 39. 1, 1. 48. 3, 1. 56. 2, 2. 34. 1, 3. 6. 2, 3. 15. 1, 3. 39. 1, 3. 62. 1; B. G. 4. 28. 1 demonstratum est = demonstravimus.

Caes. B. G. 1. 16. 2, 1. 49. 3, 3. 20. 1, 4. 35. 1 dictum est = diximus.

Caes. B. G. 6. 11. 1 perventum est = pervenimus.

Sall. Jug. 96. 1 dictum est = diximus; cf. diximus 33. 2, 34. 1, 37. 3, 38. 6.

CHAPTER III 5.

THE ACTOR DEFINITE IN THE SECOND PERSON PLURAL

This class includes all verbs of the ventum est type, which have a definite actor logically implied in the second plural, as Plaut. Bacch. 757 erit accubitum. In 753 Chrysalus says, "Mnesiloche et tu Pistoclere, iam facite in biclinio cum amica sua uterque accubitum eatis." Then in 757 instead of repeating the second plural he uses the impersonal erit accubitum which is equivalent to accubueritis as is shown not only by accubitum eatis in 755, but by exsurgatis 758.

Plaut. Bacch. 757 accubitum erit = accubueritis; cf. accubitum eatis 755.

Plaut. M. G. 737 desisti = <vos> desistere; cf. istis.

Varro R. R. 2. 11. 1 praedictum est = praedixistis; cf. adieceritis.

Caes. B. C. 2. 38. 3 auditum erat = audiveratis; supply, "you, my readers."

CHAPTER III 6.

THE ACTOR DEFINITE IN THE THIRD PERSON PLURAL

In this group are placed all those verbs (of the ventum est type) which have a definite actor logically implied in the third plural, as Plaut. Pseud. 453 itur. Pseudolus hears Callipho and Simo talking about him. He knows that punishment awaits him, so he says to himself in 453-4, "itur ad te, Pseudole. Orationem tibi para advorsum senem. They are making towards you, Pseudolus; prepare your speech to meet the old fellow." Then advancing to meet them he says aloud in 455-6 "erum saluto primum, ut aequomst, postea si quid superfit vicinos impertio. First, as is proper, I salute my master, and after that if anything is left I bestow it upon his neighbors." Itur is equivalent to eunt, which has for its implied subject Callipho and Simo.

Plaut. Cas. 813 exitur = exeunt; cf. prodeant 806.

Plaut. M. G. 1091 factumst = fecerunt; cf. legerunt 1090.

Plaut. Poen. 835 bibitur, estur = bibunt, edunt; cf. omnia genera 834.

Plaut. Pseud. 453 itur = eunt, which has for its implied subject Callipho and Simo.

Ter. And. 251 itur = eunt; cf. alunt 250.

Ter. Heaut. 44 curritur = currunt; cf. scribunt, parcant 43.

Ter. Phorm. 1010 ventumst = venerunt; cf. fiunt.

CHAPTER III 7.

THE ACTOR INDEFINITE OR GENERAL IN THE SECOND PERSON SINGULAR

This group contains all those examples which have a subject impliedly indefinite in the second person singular (i. e. you = anyone). Cato in de Agr. 5. 7, giving general directions as to farming, says, "pecori et bubus diligenter substernatur. Carefully bed your flocks and herds." Substernatur is equivalent to substernas, having as its implied subject the indefinite you, anybody. It should be remembered that the second singular, if used indefinitely, is normally in the potential subjunctive, not in the indicative; cf. Lane 1550.

Plaut. Poen. 533 curratur = curras; cf. bibas, edas 534.

Cato de Agr. 5. 7 substernatur = substernas; cf. conficias.

Cato de Agr. 14. 1 iussitur = iubeas; cf. locabis.

Cato de Agr. 39. 2 cessetur = cesses; cf. facias.

Varro L. L. 9. 108 transitum est = transieris; cf. transieris.

CHAPTER III 8.

THE ACTOR INDEFINITE IN THE THIRD PERSON SINGULAR

In this class are placed those verbs which have a third singular indefinite actor implied, as in Plaut. Trin. 65 vivitur. Megaronides says, "edepol proinde ut bene uiuitur, diu uiuitur. In proportion as one lives a happy life, one lives a long life." Here vivitur is equivalent to vivit and has homo (meaning any one of the race of men) for its implied subject. In negative expressions, usually, the indefinite is singular as Caes. B. G. 2. 17. 4 "ut instar muri hae saepes munimentum praeberent quo non modo non intrari sed ne perspicere quidem posset. So that these hedges presented a fortification like a wall, through which (no one) could enter nor even penetrate with the eye." The subject of posset is felt to be singular indefinite rather than plural indefinite. Plaut. Bacch. 544 ne inuideatur = ne <quisquam> inuideat; cf. nullus 543.

Plaut. M. G. 758 adpositumst = <aliquis> adposuit; cf. iube, tolle 759.

Plaut. Trin. 65 vivitur, vivitur = <homo> vivit, <homo> vivit.

Ter. And. 501 renuntiatumst = <aliquis> renuntiavit.

Varro L. L. 6. 72 neque agi potest = neque <quisquam> agere potest.

Varro L. L. 8. 31 discessum est = <aliquis> discessit; cf. si quis putat.

Caes. B. G. 1. 31. 2 enuntiatum esset = <quisquam> enuntiavisset.

Caes. B. G. 2. 17. 4 non intrari, sed ne perspicere quidem posset = non <quisquam> intrare, sed ne perspicere quidem posset.

Caes. B. G. 3. 3. 2 neque veniri <posset> = neque <quisquam> venire <posset>.

Caes. B. G. 7. 9. 5 nuntiari posset = <quisquam> nuntiare posset.

Nep. 18. 9. 4 praenuntiatum esse = <aliquem> praenuntiavisse.

CHAPTER III 9.

THE ACTOR INDEFINITE IN THE THIRD PERSON PLURAL

In this class are placed those verbs which have an indefinite actor logically implied in the third plural; as Plaut. Amph. 942 reventum est. Jupiter says in lines 938-42 "nam in hominum aetate multa eveniunt huius modi; capiunt voluptates, capiunt rusum miserias; irae interveniunt, redeunt rusum in gratiam, verum irae si quae forte eveniunt huius modi inter eos, rusum si reventum in gratiam est, etc. For in the life of mortals many things of this nature happen; now they take their pleasures, again they meet with hardships. Quarrels intervene, again they (mortals) become friends. But if, by chance, any quarrels of this nature happen between them, then if they have become friends again, etc." Reventum est is equivalent to revenerunt which has for its implied indefinite subject homines, as is shown by hominum.

Plaut. Amph. 942 reventum est = <homines> revenerunt; cf. hominum 938.

Plaut. Curc. 679 argentariis male credi qui aiunt = <homines> argentariis male credere qui aiunt. Credi is equivalent to credere which has for its implied subject men or people. "Those who say it is bad that <people> trust bankers," etc.

Plaut. Curc. 680 credi dico = <homines> credere dico; credi is equivalent to credere, which has a third plural indefinite subject men implied. "I say it is both good and bad <for men> to trust <bankers>" is the meaning of nam et bene et male credi dico.

Plaut. Most. 235 estur, bibitur = <homines> edunt, bibunt; cf. neque quisquam parsimoniam adhibet 236, showing that more than one person is doing the eating and drinking.

Plaut. Rud. 271 veniri solet = <homines> venire solent.

Plaut. Truc. 746 invidetur = <homines> invident; cf. invident.

Ter. Eun. 348 conclamatumst = <homines> conclamaverunt.

Ter. Heaut. 154 vivitur = <homines> vivunt.

- Ter. Hec. 315 trepidari, cursari = <homines> trepidare, cursare.
 Varro L. L. 5. 47 itur = <homines> eunt.
 Varro L. L. 6. 16 sacrificatur = <homines> sacrificant.
 Varro L. L. 6. 24 exitur = <homines> exeunt.
 Varro L. L. 6. 25 sacrificatur = <homines> sacrificant.
 Varro L. L. 6. 34 parentetur = <homines> parentent.
 Varro L. L. 7. 32 dubitatur = <homines> dubitant.
 Varro L. L. 8. 14 dicitur = <homines> dicunt.
 Varro L. L. 10. 80 erratur = <homines> errant.
 Varro R. R. 1. 2. 4 posse navigari = <homines> posse navigare.
 Varro R. R. 1. 16. 6 navigari, evehi, invehi possit = <homines> navigare, evehere, invehere possent.
 Varro R. R. 3. 1. 2 dici possit = <homines> dicere possint.
 Caes. B. C. 1. 67. 2 conclamatum esset = <quidam> conclamavissent.
 Caes. B. C. 3. 96. 4 dicebatur = <homines> dicebant.
 Caes. B. G. 7. 36. 2 despici poterat = <homines> despicere poterant.
 (Caes.) B. G. 8. 7. 7 diceretur = <homines> dicerent.
 Lucr. 5. 18 non poterat vivi = <mortales> non poterant vivere; cf. mortales 15.
 Sall. Cat. 2. 8 siletur = <homines> silent.
 Sall. Jug. 5. 1 itum est = <homines> ierunt.
 Nep. 6. 4. 1 perlatus esse = <homines> pertulisse.
 Nep. 10. 9. 5 dictum est = <homines> dixerunt.
 Nep. 10. 10. 2 factum est = <homines> fecerunt.
 Nep. 25. 14. 1 cenatum est = <homines> cenaverunt; cf. convivae.

CHAPTER IV

THE AGENT NOT EXPRESSED BUT UNDERSTOOD FROM THE VERB

In this group are placed those impersonals whose subjects are neither expressed nor implied in the context, yet are known because the verb itself immediately calls up the person or persons upon whom this duty devolves; as Cato de Agr. 150. 1 interkalatum erit is equivalent to < pontifices > interkalaverint. It was the duty of the pontifices to regulate the calendar. In Caes. B. C. 1. 1. 1 referretur = < consul > referret. To refer matters to the senate was the consul's business. This group has been divided into two classes: the first contains those verbs which have a singular subject implied for their active equivalent, the second class includes those verbs which have a plural subject implied. These active verbs, whether singular or plural, have their implied subjects in the third person.

I. Third Singular.

Caes. B. C. 1. 1. 1. referretur = < consul > referret.

Caes. B. C. 1. 2. 2. non oportere referri = non oportere < consulem > referre.

Caes. B. C. 1. 2. 7 refertur = < consul > refert.

Caes. B. C. 1. 6. 3 refertur, refertur = < consul > refert, refert.

Sall. Cat. 48. 5 referatur = < consul > referat.

Sall. Cat. 51. 21 animadvorteretur = < praetor > animadvorteret.

Sall. Jug. 28. 3 nuntiari iubet = < nuntium > nuntiare iubet.

II. Third Plural.

Cato de Agr. 150. 1 interkalatum erit = < pontifices > interkalaverint.

Varro L. L. 6. 13 intercalatur = < pontifices > intercalant.

(Caes.) B. Afr. 40. 5 cani iussisset = iussisset < cornicines tubicinesque > canere; cf. comment on B. G. 7. 47. 1 below.

Caes. B. C. 3. 75. 2 conclamari = < the proper officials > conclamare.

Caes. B. G. 7. 47. 1 cani = iussit (cornicines tubicinesque) canere.

Canis in B. Afr. 40. 5 and here may mean that Caesar ordered < the instruments > to be sounded. In that case cani would not belong in this group, since there is an implied subject of the passive, but would be an ordinary passive; as in B. C. 3. 82. 1 classicumque apud eum cani . . . iubet.

CHAPTER V

IMPERSONALS WITH EXPRESSED AGENT

This class of verbs, which is here called "Impersonal with Expressed Agent," includes those verbs which have their logical subject expressed by the ablative, or dative of agent, or otherwise. This construction is used to make the action prominent, while the actor is secondary, but not left to inference.

Plaut. Amph. 219 utrimque exitum est; utrimque = ab utrisque and is an expressed agent.

Plaut. Bacch. 295 factum a vobis.

Plaut. Cas. 394 a me factum.

Plaut. M. G. 561 a me factum esse.

Plaut. Poen. 805 factum a vobis.

Ter. Ad. 662 factum a vobis.

Ter. Heaut. 158 peccatum a me est.

Ter. Heaut. 249 factum a nobis est.

Ter. Hec. 624 abs te est factum.

Ter. Phorm. 1001 factumst abs te.

(Caes.) B. Afr. 18. 4 ab hostibus pugnaretur nec comminus ad manus rediretur.

(Caes.) B. Alex. 19. 6 pugnabatur a nobis.

(Caes.) B. Alex. 39. 2 utrimque processum est; utrimque = ab utroque.

(Caes.) B. Alex. 62. 3 pugnatur utrimque; utrimque = ab utroque.

Caes. B. C. 1. 26. 1 utrimque pugnabatur; utrimque = ab utrisque.

Caes. B. C. 1. 57. 3 pugnatum est utrimque; utrimque = ab utrisque.

Caes. B. C. 1. 67. 1 disputatur a Petreio atque Afranio.

Caes. B. C. 3. 14. 1 erat praeceptum a Caesare.

Caes. B. C. 3. 93. 1 concurri a Pompeianis.

Caes. B. C. 3. 93. 1 erat praeceptum a Caesare.

Caes. B. C. 3. 100. 1 factum a Libone.

Caes. B. G. 1. 22. 3 erat praeceptum a Caesare.

Caes. B. G. 1. 50. 3 utrimque pugnatum est; utrimque = ab utroque.

Caes. B. G. 2. 33. 4 pugnatum ab hostibus est.

- Caes. B. G. 2. 33. 4 a viris fortibus pugnari debuit.
 Caes. B. G. 3. 18. 6 ab iis erat provisum.
 Caes. B. G. 3. 25. 1 ab hostibus pugnaretur.
 Caes. B. G. 4. 23. 2 a quibus administratum esset.
 Caes. B. G. 4. 26. 1 pugnatum est ab utrisque.
 Caes. B. G. 5. 6. 1 ab nobis dictum est.
 Caes. B. G. 5. 30. 1 a Cotta primisque ordinibus resisteretur.
 Caes. B. G. 5. 40. 3 ab nostris resistitur.
 Caes. B. G. 7. 16. 3 ab nostris occurrebatur.
 Caes. B. G. 7. 47. 2 erat a Caesare praeceptum.
 Caes. B. G. 7. 70. 1 ab utrisque contenditur.
 Lucr. 5. 1149 concessumst legibus aequis.
 Lucr. 6. 377 turbatur utrimque; utrimque = ab utrisque.
 Sall. Jug. 53. 2 utrimque concurritur; utrimque = ab utrisque.
 Sall. Jug. 67. 2 neque a fortissimis resisti posse.
 Sall. Jug. 102. 4 a Manlio concessum.
 Sall. Jug. 107. 1 a paucis strenuis pugnatum.
 Sall. Jug. 112. 3 ab omnibus veniretur.
 Sall. Jug. 114. 1 ab ducibus nostris pugnatum.
 Nep. 2. 10. 4 apud plerosque scriptum est.
 Nep. 2. 10. 5 legibus non concederetur.

In examples found in the works of authors other than historians (Caesar, Sallust, Nepos and Lucretius) the singular definite is used more frequently than the plural definite. In the historians the plural definite is used more often.

The singular indefinite is used on an average less than the plural indefinite, the ratio being about 1: 2.

The definite meaning occurs more frequently than the indefinite, the ratio being about 15: 2.

Plautus, out of 79 examples, uses 31 which require a logically implied subject in first singular definite, because he uses dialogue requiring a first singular definite subject. This impersonal construction relieves the monotony of a too oft recurring first person definite.

Terence, for the same reason, uses for the most part an impersonal requiring a logically implied subject in first and third singular definite.

Cato, giving directions as to farming, makes very little use of this impersonal construction. Of the seven examples taken from his works three are equivalent to a personal construction having a second singular indefinite subject.

One-third of the examples gathered from Varro require a subject in the third plural indefinite because Varro treats of grammar and of affairs pertaining to agriculture and does it in general or indefinite terms. He uses this impersonal passive for the sake of variety.

Caesar and Sallust write of war; consequently the greater number of their impersonal verbs need subjects logically implied in the third person singular and the third plural definite. To avoid the too frequent use of a personal subject they make use of this impersonal construction.

Nepos in his "Lives" is very fond of this impersonal passive, having for its active a logically implied subject in the third plural definite.

The lyric poet Catullus and Lucretius in his philosophical poem make very scanty use of this impersonal passive. The comic writers Plautus and Terence, however, use it very frequently.

In conclusion it can be said:

(1). Writers of the republican period do not use the impersonal passive of the ventum est type so frequently as the imperial authors. The writers of the empire continued to make use of this construction, as is shown by Tacitus, who gives us one example, approximately, for every 3.4 pages, Juvenal, one example for every 11.8 pages, Horace, one for every 25.5 pages, and Suetonius, one for every 2.5 pages.

(2). This idiom is used most frequently by historians of this (republican) period; Caesar, Sallust, and Nepos.

(3). It is not popular with the poets of this age, except the writers of comedy.

(4). In republican times, the impersonal passive of the ventum est type was commonly equivalent to an active, having a definite subject implied in the context. In this investigation, four hundred fifty-four examples have been cited; four hundred one of these show a definite doer for the active equivalent, only fifty-three show an indefinite agent implied for the equivalent active.

OBSERVATIONS

1. Caesar uses more than three times as many first plurals as pseudo-Caesar, 67:18.

2. Pseudo-Caesar uses more than four times as many first singulars as Caesar, 24:5.

3. Caesar uses ten times as many impersonals as pseudo-Caesar, 20:2.

4. Since Caesar uses 67 first plurals to 5 first singulars, or 13 times as many, his impersonals should be interpreted as first plurals rather than first singulars. Pseudo-Caesar uses eighteen first plurals to twenty-four first singulars. These impersonals of his may be interpreted as first singulars or first plurals.

APPENDIX II

DOUBTFUL READINGS

Those passages which have various textual readings have been listed. The text is uncertain; therefore they have not been included in the discussion.

Plaut. M. G. 1409 factumst. One Ms. has the reading factum est, while another reads factus est.

Plaut. Truc. 127 cenetur, Ms. Ambrosianus has cena detur, Palatinus reads centur.

Ter. And. 451 obsonatum est. This is the reading of the Vaticanus Ms.; obsonatus est is another reading. The latter reading is strongly favored by the context.

Caes. B. C. 1. 86. 4 noceatur. ne cui de his noceatur is the reading of one Ms. Another reads ne quid eis noceatur.

Caes. B. C. 3. 16. 4 componeretur has componerentur for a variant reading.

Caes. B. C. 3. 18. 3 visum est, reversus est and rursus are the different readings for this passage.

Caes. B. C. 3. 24. 2 imperatum est is a reading given by only one text, that of Kübler. It has no Ms. authority.

Caes. B. G. 7. 79. 3 concurritur; β group of Mss. has concurritur, the α group has concurrunt. The latter seems to be the better reading.

Lucr. 2. 94 probatumst. The Ms. readings of this passage are ostendi . . . probatumst and ostendit . . . probatumst. The latter makes spatium the subject of probatumst.

APPENDIX III

NOTES ON RELINQUITUR, SITUM EST, ACTUM EST, ETC.

relinquitur, although an impersonal passive in Varro L. L. 10. 30, R. R. 2. 2. 20, 2. 3. 9, 2. 9. 1, has not been classed with the ventum est group. It is equivalent to restat or to superest, and has been considered as an impersonal of the third type, a classification to which restat and superest belong. In Varro R. R. 3. 16. 1, relinquitur has a subject. Usually it is followed by ut, where the ut-clause is subject; as in Caes. B. C. 1. 29.2, B. G. 5. 19. 3, etc.

In Plaut. Stich. 53 est situm is an impersonal passive and also is equivalent to restat or superest. It has, therefore, not been included in the ventum est group.

Actum est in Plaut. Cist. 685, actum siet Ter. Heaut. 456, actumst in Ter. Eun. 54, 717, 985 and Heaut. 584 are impersonal passive, in form, but not in meaning. Ago in its original meaning is an active transitive verb. Res acta est, the case is over (and done for); acta haec res est, this matter is ended. From this meaning arose the expression actum est de aliqua re, it is all over with a person or thing. Everything is lost. The person is utterly ruined. Since actum est is the regular form meaning "it is all over," it has not been included in this study.

In Sallust Cat. 52. 6 agitur de vectigalibus = vectigalia aguntur, vectigalia is felt to be the subject.

In Varro R. R. 1. 2. 20 non inigi is not an impersonal passive. Hoc nomine refers to caprini generis, from which a subject is clearly implied.

Plaut. Curc. 681 creditur has not been included in this study. Creditur may here be an impersonal passive with an indefinite implied subject in the third singular as <homo> credit, cf. French on, German man, or a third plural may be its implied indefinite subject, as homines credunt; or it may have a word for money as its subject, for such a word is the subject of perit. The last interpretation seems the best.
